

Environment Protection Licence

Compliance Reporting

Every Environment Protection Licence (EPL) has conditions attached to it which vary. There is one thing that will not vary and that is your need to comply with the licence.

Your Licence

The licence can refer to your development approval conditions and other legislation, regulations and permits. As a licence holder, it is extremely important that you comply with the Protection of the Environment Operations Act 1997 (POEO Act). As the nominated person, you are directly responsible for reporting. Not doing so can result in prosecutions, fines and loss of your licence and closure of your facility.

The EPL conditions are specified in your licence, and will vary, depending on the type and scale of your business activity.

We have the skills and experience to ensure that you are compliant. Using our reporting services provides significant benefits to you. It allows you to know the costs of environmental licensing and to control them, while you focus on your core business.
